TWO LECTURES AT GWU ON "THE ARCHITECTURE OF LUIS BARRAGAN"

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- "The Architecture of Luis Barragan" will be presented in a slide lecture at The George Washington University on Thursday, October 19, and again on Wednesday, October 25. Both will be given at 5 p.m. in the lower lounge of Lisner Auditorium, GWU, 21st and H Streets, N.W., and are open to the public without charge.

The slide show and recorded narration, written by Emilio Ambasz, will be introduced with a short talk: on October 19 by Barbara Von Barghahn, assistant professor of art at George Washington, and on October 25 by Lenore D. Miller, curator of art at the university.

Luis Barragan has been called one of the most gifted of contemporary landscape architects and is known for his magnificent gardens and carefully constructed plazas. Barragan designated Emilio Ambasz, design critic and scholar, as the leading interpreter of his work.

The lower lounge of Lisner Auditorium adjoins the Dimock Gallery where the current exhibition (through November 10) is a collection of twentieth-century Mexican prints from the Library of Congress. Both the lectures and the print exhibition are presented in conjunction with MEXICO TODAY, a national symposium of exhibitions, seminars, films, performing arts and courses on contemporary Mexico.

RUSSIAN PRESERVATIONISTS TO SPEAK AT GWU

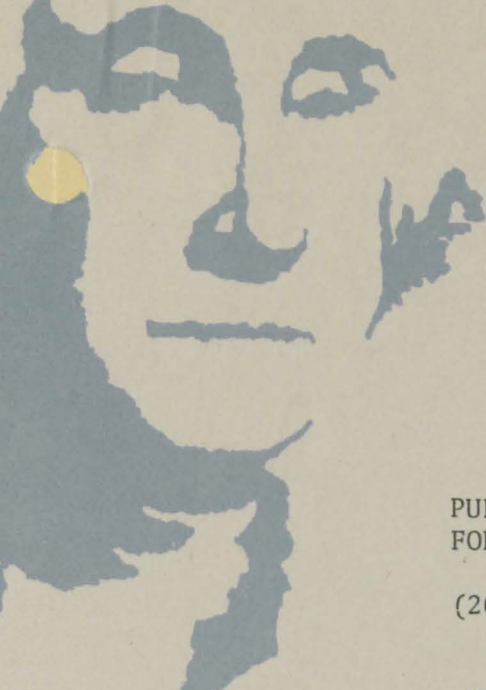

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- Two historic preservation specialists from the Soviet Union will speak (and show slides) on their work on Wednesday, October 18, at 5:30 p.m. in Building C (rm. 103), 2201 G St. N.W., on the George Washington University campus. The lecture is sponsored by GW's graduate program in historic preservation and is open to the public without charge.

The preservationists* are associated with the Central Institute of History and Theory of Architecture in the Soviet Union. Their visit to the U.S. is sponsored by the newly formed Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service, U.S. Department of the Interior.

John Pearce, director of GW's program in historic preservation, noted that, "International aspects of historic preservation have long been a concern of our program. The Soviet Union has developed a remarkable program in preservation and we look forward to this exchange as well as similar ones in the future."

GW's historic preservation program, the only such program in the Washington area, is also unique in that it is the one program in the country which involves a joint degree concentration common to three established academic areas--American studies, history, and urban and regional planning. The program was begun in 1975 with initial funding from the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Trust for Historic Preservation.
